AGONCILIO A PRISONER IN THE SKERRYFORE LIGHTHOUSE.

mermy Weather Likely to Keep Him There a Long Time-The Labrador Struck a Back Off the Hebrides After She Bad Been Run by Dead Reckoning for Three Days in a Dense Fog-The Rescue, Special Cable Despatches to THE BUR.

Lexpon. March 2.-The Dominion line steamship Labrador, from St. John, N. B., and Rallfax for Liverpool, struck Mackingle Rock. four miles from Skerryvore Light, Hebrides, Scotland at 7 o'clock yesterday morning and is a total wreck. All of her passengers and erew, except twelve who are at Skerryvore Lighthouse, were landed at Tobermory last evening by the steamer Viking, which hove in sight a few hours after the disaster.

Among the passengers who found refuge in the Skerryvore Lighthouse is Agonello, the representative of Aguinaldo, the leader of the Philippine insurgents. Heavy weather is prevalling in the vicinity of the Hebrides, and the passengers in the lighthouse are threatened with long imprisonment, as it will be impossible for vessels to approach the islet until the wind and sea abate.

The Labrador, which left Halifax on Feb. 20. had a good passage until Feb. 26, when a heavy fog set in, making it impossible to take th ship's bearings for three days. As she neared the Hebrides Islands the fog became denser, and Skerryvore Light was mistaken, it is supposed, for Innistrahull. Soundings of from forty to fifty fathoms were got just before the ship struck.

Most of the passengers were in bed or dress ing when the alarm was given that the ship had run upon a rock. The vessel struck hard and stuck fast amidships. The women and children on board were greatly excited, but the crew, following the example of Capt, Erskine, showed the utmost coolness. The boats were in excellent order, and all of them, six lifeboats and two small boats, were utilized The passengers and crew lost all their belongings, as everything had to be sacrificed to save their lives. The Captain made strong efforts to take off the mails, but the breaking up of the ship was imminent and the attempt had to be abandoned.

The women and children were put into the first boat in charge of the fourth officer, and the other passengers into the next boat, in charge of the second officer. When these boats were swung clear the remaining members of the crew followed in the other boats, all taking the direction of Skerryvore Lighthouse. The sea in the meantime had become yellow with the wheat which was pouring from the hold of

The boats had been at sea about three and a half hours when the steamer Viking, bound for Norway, hove in sight, and at once took the passengers and crew of the Labrador on board. The transfer of the men, women and children from the boats to the ship was very difficult owing to the heavy swell and high waves many of which dashed over the top of the Viking's funnel. As the Viking lost sight of her the Labrador was fast breaking up and sinking by the stern. Capt. Hunland, commander of the Viking, is highly praised by the passengers and crew of the Labrador for his skill and coolness in the difficult work of reseaing the occupants of the Labrador's boats, not one of whom was lost. The hotels at Tobermory are filled with the rescued ones, and those unable to find rooms there are lodged in the houses of fishermen.

One of the woman passengers lost £600 worth of jewels and a man lost £300 in cash. There were seventeen horses on board the steamer. It was impossible to rescue them. but the men having them in charge humanely cut them loose and gave them food, so that they might have a chance for their lives.

GLASGOW. March 2.—The Glasgow Citizen says that the Labrador had a summerlike passage most of the way over, and made good running, but as she neared this side the Captain and officers were unable to take sights for three days owing to the fog. Consequently, the only guide to the position of the ship was that given by deadleckoning, which, by reason of the currents, was untrustworthy. The Cap-tain had been on deck since 2 P. M. Tuesday when the ship struck. The second officer was on the sick list, and the third officer had taken the watch with the Captain. The passengers, who were in their berths, vere awakened by a crash and rushed on deck. The Labrador had run well up on a rock and was filling rapidly. The ship was th the beavy swell. launching of the boats difficult. The coolerheaded of the passengers calmed the women, and the crew did their duty with the most praiseworthy discipline.

When the first boat was ready the women and children were lowered into it with ropes. While the other boats were being filled the Viking hove in sight, and took on board all of the passengers and crew, except those in one boat, which made its way to the Skerryvore Lighthouse. This boat contained twelve passengers, who remain prisoners at the lighthouse, as the wind freshened and they were unable to return to the Viking. All of the passengers are in good spirits. A few of them had some of their effects with them, tied in bundles, when they were landed.

The ship had been going slowly, but just before the accident the Captain signalled the engine room to go ahead at full speed, believing that the course was clear. LIVERPOOL, March 2.—The tug Great Emperor, with divers on board, has been sent to the wreck of the Labrador to endeavor to recover the mails.

TYPHOID IN PATERSON.

Twelve New Cases and One Death Testerday-Dr. Leal's Opinion.

PATERSON, N. J., March 2.-Twelve new case of typhoid fever were reported to the Health suthorities to-day. There are now forty-one cases in the city, all of which have developed since Sunday. Last evening Miss Lizzie Longwell died atther home on Park avenue, being the first victim of the present outbreak.

At a consultation of a special committee of the Board of Health this morning Dr. Leal, City Health Inspector, said that he had come to the conclusion that the epidemic was due to germs in the water furnished to the city by the Passaic Water Company. He announced that In order to obviate this he had taken steps to remove all sources of poliution in the river's watershed. IDr. Leal said he was of the opinion that the infection goes not now exist in the watershed. IDr. Leal said he was of the opinion that the infection does not now exist in the river water, but that the disease was contracted in the latter part of January. The present outbreak he considered to be similar to that of last year and due to a flithy condition of the river, but caused by typhoid infection getting into the river from some place where a case of typhoid had existed. Dr. Leal is confident that the disease has reached its limit, and that after to-day but few cases will be reported.

At the trial of Police Captain Martens yesterday for allowing policy playing to flourish in his former precinct, the Twenty-first, witness Jacob Zimmer testified that he was once a policy writer himself. Two of the policy dealers at 210 and 315 East Thirty-fourth street took in, he said, from $30 to $32 a day on plays averaging eight or ten cents for each. The lowest play was two cents, the highest twenty-five. Harry Martin, an undertaker of 361 West Filty-eighth street, swore that he played policy, in order to obtain evidence, at the various places in Capt. Martens's precinct, and submitted the slips, which he had kept, as evidence. They were made part of the record.

A remark during the trial drew the statement from President York that lotto, usually considered an innocent children's game, was identical with keno and a gambling game just as much. "The original name of keno was lotto," said Mr. York. No one contradicted him.

THE REV. MR. HERBST MOVES.

Just Escapes a Writ of Ejectment Procured by His Enemies in the Church.

The action for the ejectment of the deposed pastor, the Rev. George R. Herbst, and his family from the parsonage of St. Paul's German Evangelical (Lutheran) Church on East Twenty-fifth street, Bayonne, brought by Trustee George Christ in behalf of the congregation, was called yesterday forenoon before Justice of the Peace James J. Boylan at Bayonne. Pastor Herbst neither appeared nor was repre-sented in court, and Justice Boylan issued a writ of ejectment. The document was not writ of ejectment. The document was not served, however, as Pastor Herbst was engaged in moving. His new home is 741 Avenue D. several blocks distant from the church.

While Mr. Herbst still considers himself as pastor of St. Paul's Church, athering to the decision rendered by President Brant and Vice-President Walker of the Missouri Lutheran Synod that his dismissal from the pastorate by the hostile majority faction was illegal, he removed from the pastonage to preserve the peace. He will engage a hall in the vicinity for the purpose of holding services for those members of the congregation who have supported him during the two months warfare. It is understood that the majority faction of St. Paul's congregation contemplate withdrawing from the Missouri Synod and organizing an independent German Presbyterian church, with the Rey, Mr. Wasker of Newark as pastor. That elergyman has officiated twice at the Sunday services held in St. Paul's Church.

AN OLD SUIT DECIDED.

Steele Mackaye Beaten in the United State Circuit Court by M. H. Mallory.

The United States Circuit Court of Appeals has rendered a final decision in the case of Steele Mackaye vs. Marshall H. Mallory. The decision was in favor of the defendant.

The suit dragged along over a period of eighteen years, but it is of interest to those who remember the establishment of the Madison Square Theatre by Mr. Mallory in 1879. Steele Mackaye, a prominent theatrical man at that time, was engaged as manager. His salary was to be increased after the original expenditures were regained. Mr. Mackaye withdrew before the close of the first year, and brought suit against Mr. Mallory, claiming that the time for an increase in his salary had arrived. Af the time of Mr. Mackaye's withdrawal the play "Hazel Kirke" was running, with tremendous success. The theatre had been equipped with a double stage, and had several other innovations, which had been obtained at considerable expense.

The final decision states that Mr. Mackaye had no adequate justification for breach of contract, and that even it he had continued as manager he would not have been entitled to any increase at that time. It further states that Mr. Mallory lived fully up to the contract in all respects. Steele Mackage, a prominent theatrical man

Mrs. Fay said that she and her husband lived together until Feb. 8, 1895, when he went to Ireland. He returned in the following August, but did not live with her again. She brought divorce proceedings against him in the Supreme Court in Brooklyn on the statutory ground, naming Jeanle Minion as corespondent, and on Jan. 25 last she obtained a decree of absolute divorce. At that time, she said, she did not know that her husband had married the co-respondent. She was recently informed that this was the fact, so she went to the Board of Health and got a copy of the marriage record. According to the record Fay said that his marriage to the Minion woman was his first venture into matrimony.

Fay's counsel asked that the examination be postponed until to-day. Magistrate Pool granted the request, and held the man in $5,000 bail.

LAWYER ANTHONY MUST ANSWER. Summoned to Show Cause Why He Should Not Be Disbarred.

Lawyer D. Edgar Anthony was served yesterday with papers, returnable on March 20 before the Appellate Division, requiring him to show cause why he should not be disbarred. The Bar Association of New York is the petitioner and the charges are deceit and malpractice. Carter, President, and Rofus W. Peckham, Jr., G. L. Winthrop, Lloyd M. Garrison and Austen G. Fox, members of the Bar Association. ## SCHURZ BIRTHDAY DINNER.

PRIENDS CELEBRATE HIS 71ST YEAR

WITH A FEAST. Eight Speeches Devoted to Different Periods of His Life and a Reply from the Guest-Cleveland Sends a Letter of Gloomy Gratitude and Didactical Monition.

At the end of his threescore years and ten Carl Schurz is still vigorous enough to have been able to sit up and listen for four hours last night to speeches, with himself as their subject, on the occasion of the complimentary birthday dinner to him at Delmonico's. Every side of his character was duly canvassed. He was tonated as a German revolutionist of '48, as an anti-slavery agitator, as a soldier in the civil war, as a reconstruction statesman, as a United States Senator, as a member of the Cabinet, and finally as a civil service reformer: so there is small wonder, when it was all over, that his speech in response should have had a tinge of the appeal, "Save me from my friends." About 350 guests sat down to the dinner. The room was decorated with German and American flags, the German war flag as well as the national flag, being shown. Before the speaking began the orchestra played "Die Wacht am Rhein," and everybody rose. Then came the "Star-Spangled Banner," and again all rose. Some sang. Charles Francis Adams opened the proceedings as Chairman. Mr. Adams said that he didn't know who his representative in Congress was, but that he was inadequately represented; that all his hearers were probably inadequately repre-sented. Furthermore, that they were insented. Furthermore. That they were inadequately represented because Mr. Schurz, whose constituency was proven by their presence, was kept out of political activity by the machine. This sentiment was applicated, and the Chairman introduced Dr. A. Jacobi, who spoke of Mr. Schurz's cart in the revolution in Germany. Prof. William M. Sloane of Columbia. University then considered Mr.

Schurz as "The Champion of the Slave."
Gen. John T. Lockman, who served under Schurz in the civil war, told of the war record of the guest of honor and referred to him as Gen. Carl Schurz. "The Statesman in Reconstruction" was the subject of the toast of exCongressman William B. Fleming of Georgia.
Moorfield Storey, ex-President of the American Bar Ass-celation, next took up the thread of Mr. Schurz's sile and considered him as "The United States Senator." Next in the natural chronology of the subject came "The Member of the Cabinet," and Jierbert Welsh of Philadelohia. Secretary of the Indian Rights' Association, was the speaker. Finally Edward M. Shepard of Brookivn reached the culminating point of glory and talked about civil service reform and Carl Schurz as the wellspring thereof.

That ended the vivisection, Mr. Schurz rose to reply, revealing himself as a man who has borne his seventy years sturdily. His eyes are still bright, his sandy beard shows few traces of gray and his voice is firm and resonant. He said in part:

"I flud myself here in the presence of hundreds and my whole hiography is mercilessly thrown at me in public while I have no fair coustomed to the discussion of public questions but not to the discussion of my personal character. Being in a sense called unon to do this the situation is to me extremely embarrassing.
Some of the things I have heard to night about myself can be said with safety of any man only when he is dead and gone and the sum of his life has been judicially struck. But, although the first exuberance of my life may be behind to take more or less interest in the affairs of adequately represented because Mr. Schurz, whose constituency was proven by their pres-for they do not know what may still be coming to make them sorry for what they have said."

Among the letters received was this from ex President Cleveland:

"My Dear Sir: I regret exceedingly that I cannot promise myself the pleasure of participating in the celebration of Mr. Schurz's seventieth birthday. I find that an engagement, which I had hoped might be peatponed, will prevent my attendance.

"My disappointment is measured by the extreme gratification it would afford me to contribute my testimony to the volume that will be presented on the occasion you have arranged, in grateful support of Mr. Schurz's usefulness and patriotic clitzenship.

"His life and career teach lessons that cannot be too often or too impressively emphasized. They ilinstrate the moral grandeur of disinterested public service and the nobility of a fearliers advocacy of the things that are right and just and safe. It will be a sad day for our country when, in the light of such an example, our people refuse to see the best statesmanship in steadfast adherence to conscience and honesty in storm as well as sunshine.

"I believe that the most confident hope of the permanency and continued beneficence of our free institutions rests upon the cultivation by those intrusted with public duty and among the ranks of our countrymen of the traits which have distinguished the man whom you propose to honor. Yours very truly.

ARRESTED AS COUNTERFEITERS,

felin, Wilhelm Keuffel, John Brooks Leavitt, Carl Schipper and John Elderkin, Christopher Ckokonosky and George Cerpatis in the Somerville Jail.

SOMERVILLE, N. J., March 2.-Christopher Chokenosky and George Cerpatis, who were arrested in Bound Brook on Tuesday and placed in the county jail here as suspected counterfeiters, were taken in charge to-night by Secret Service Agent George Barker of Wash-ington, D. C. Agent Barker arrived here from Shamokin accompanied by Constable Walter Daubert and Charles Clifford of that place, who were brought here to identify the men under arrest. Clifford identified Cerpatis as a man who rented a house adjoining his home and set up a watchmaker's repair shop four months ago. Clifford said that Cernatis did little at his business during the day, but at night there was a noise in his cellar similar to the pound-ing of an anvil with a hammer. Clifford says he also saw strange men go to and from the place.

When Cerpatis moved out of the house last Week Clifford, whose suspicions had been aroused, made a visit of investigation. Secreted in one of the rooms unstairs he found a counterfeiter's die and under the cellar floor he found about5290 in gold and silver counterfeit cein. He told Constable Daubert of his find, who immediately notified the Secret Service officials at Washington. Daubert learned that Cerpatis had shipped goods that weighed 4,000 pounds to Somerville by freight, and telegraphed Chief of Police Shurts to apprehend him. Cerpatis and his pal, Ckokonosky, under whose name the goods were shipped, appeared here a few days ago and ordered the goods on their arrival to be reshipped to Bound Brook. Their arrest followed. Secret Service Agent Brown of New York, who has been working on the case for the past two days, discovered that five trunks had been shipped to Cerpatis at Bound Brook. In this baggage there was found to-day six stone bottles containing a gold solution, some crueibles and a part of a counterfeiter's outfit. The men and the outfit were at the Central Bailroad Stainnote-onight to be taken before a United States Commissioner at Wilkesbarre. The Secret Service agents failed to make railroad connections and returned the men to the county jail. when Cerpatis moved out of the house last

THE TEXAS COTTON CROP.

Only 168,000 Bales Held by Railroads for the Reduced Freights.

AUSTIN, Tex., March 2.-It has been intimated y prominent New Orleans cotton brokers that from 3,400,000 to 4,000,000 bales of cotton were being held in Texas to await the reduced freight rate promulgated by the Railroad Commission to go into effect on March 10. This report has been used to explain the big falling off of cotton receipts and to affect the apparent inaccuracy of many of the estimates of the maccuracy of many of the estimates of the Texas cotton crop.

The traffic departments of the different Texas ronds have just finished compiling data as to the number of bales being held on their respective lines, and the estimates place the aggregate number of bales now being held in the State at only 198,000. Taking the amount of cotton that has come into sight in Texas this season and the railroad estimate of what is to come as a busis of calculation of what is still to come forward, the cotton crop of Texas and the Indian Territory will not exceed 3,450,000 bales.

Richard Suydam Palmer died on Tuesday at Colorado Springs. He was the son of the late Dr. Richard S. Palmer of this city and the grandson of Courtlandt Palmer, whose large estate be inherited. His father died while he was still a youth, and Mrs. Palmer married George G. Haren. Young Palmer, who was a graduate of Columbia, class of 1889, made his graduate of Columbia, class of 1889, made his home with his mother and stepfather at 24 East Thirty-ninth street. When he left college his friend, Capt. C.F. Goodrich, U.S. N., offered him the post of commande.'s private secretary, which offer Mr. Paimer accepted, and for six years he cruised with Capt. Later he bought the schooner Yampa, on which he made a protracted voyage, c ulsing among the West Indies, in the Mediterranean and the North and Baltic Seas. Emperor William of Germany saw the Yampa while she was lying at Kiel and was so pleased with her that he asked Mr. Palmer to sell her to him. After returning to New York Mr. Palmer complied with the Emperor's request, sending the Yampa over to him last summer. At the outbreak of the war with Spain Mr. Palmer joined an expedition sent out by the Government to establish signal stations along the Atlantic coast. On this tour he went from Maine to Florida perfecting the signal service. On his return he enlisted as an able-bodied seaman on the St. Louis, which was then in command of his friend, Capt. Goodrich. He was soon promoted to ensign. At the landing of the troops at Santiago he was put in command of a cutter and was occupied for a month in the diaembarkation of the troops, most of which time he was forced to sleep in wet clothes. As a result he contracted a heavy cold and was put on the sick list. After the St. Louis had transported Admiral Cervera and his officers to Fortsmouth, Mr. Palmer was brought to New York work suffering from appendicitis. In July a successful operation was performed, and in August he was sent out to Colorado Springs. His mother and stepsister accompanied him. For a time he seemed to improve, but the exposure to which he had been subjected in Cuba brought on a complication of diseases, from which he died. WIDOW UNDER SURFEILLANCE AND HER BROTHER ARRESTED.

Police Say That the Woman Has Been Leading a Gay Life-Confront Her with Men Who Have Visited Her-Theory That the Watchdogs Knew the Murderer.

Detectives from the West 125th street poe station who are charged with the solution of the mystery of who killed Henry Knaus, the Harlem undertaker, who was found dead in his shop at 2328 Broadway last Saturday morning, with his skull crushed in, his three watchdogs nearby, tried a new tack yesterday. Acting on the theory universally advanced at the time of the murder that as the dogs, though flerce to strangers, gave no alarm when the crime was committed, the murderer must be some one well known to them and to the undertaker, the detectives arrested Charles Dempewolf, 18 years old, Knaus's brother-inlaw, who lives at the shop, and who, when Mrs. Knaus discovered the body, gave the alarm to the police.

Dempewolf was taken to the West 125th street station and put through a rigorous examination by Capt. Stainkamp. It is evidently believed that the youth can, if he Capt. Stainkamp refused last night to say anything about the reasons for the arrest, but hinted that the police knew what they were about, and had reasons to believe that the murderer would soon be behind prison bars. Young Dempswolf took his arrest coolly. He was placed in a cell on the technical charge of being a suspicious person. Later he was arraigned before Magistrate Mott in the Harlem raigned before Magistrate Mott in the Harlem Police Court and remanded at the request of Detective Dowling until to-day. The police intimated that they then hoped to have evidence enough to hold him.

It was learned by the police yesterday that Mrs. Knaus has been leading rather a gay life for the last eight or nine months. They secured the names of several men who have been in the habit of visiting her apartments while her husband was absent, and last night detectives were sent to find these men and take them to the police station.

At 7 o'clock last night Detectives Kera and Parker went to Mrs. Knaus's house and requested her to go with them for a walk. When they got outside they went direct to the West 125th street station. There Mrs. Knaus was ushered into Capt. Stainkamp's private room and was put through a severa cross-examination by Inspector Kane and the Captain. She dealed what her brother had told the police and when asked to explain the visits strange men had paid to her, she said that any tale of such visits was a lie and that she was a respectable woman.

The woman was self-possessed, but when men had paid to her, she said that any tale of such visits was a lie and that she was a respectable woman.

The woman was self-possessed, but when Capt. Stainkamp marched seven men into his room and made them line up before her her face flushed. She denied positively, however, that any of the seven had called on her. All seven asserted that they had. In the line were three bicycle policemen and a Harlem business man. Each one of the men was then examined separately. According to their statements Mrs. Knaus has been vary popular with a great many people who professed to be friends of her husband.

Demicwolf, the woman's brother, has been living with the Knaus family for some time and was frequently called upon to attend to his brother-in-law's business. He and his sister have always been on the best of terms.

Mrs. Knaus was detained at the station until after 11 o'clock. In the presence of Capt. Stainkamp, Insucotor Kane and the detectives twenty-two witnesses swore that they had visited the woman in her husband's absence, and they believed without his knowledge. At 11 o'clock she was taken home, but the house was watched by the police all night. It is believed that she will be arrested to-day.

The farmer was on hand at the designated time and place for the ceremony, but the Brownsville girl did not show up. Young Gurges, however, who, it appears, cut the old man out appeared as her representative and told him that the engagement had been broken. The plush cape, gold ring and other things had been presented to the girl by her aged lover and he thinks they should be returned, Gurges, he alleges, is wearing the ring. The hearing in the case was adjourned until Thursday next. Kloipofsky is a bachelor, but several months
